"Where was the 'ring' when the lights went out?" That may have been the query of the man who cut the feed wire taken in "executive session." J. E. Morgan, president of the school board, confirmed the report of the change, when niked about it Wednesday.

"The school board found that it could get an auditor for less money and employed Henry Schnifer," said Mr. Morgan. "Mr. Sawyer has been a good man, has kept the accounts of the office in a satisfaction."

Information from other sources attributes the change in auditors to politics, and it is reported that the change is the direct result of Mr. Sawyer refusing to vote for Adrian Pool for county judge.

It is known that Mr. Sawyer was asked on two or three occasions if he would vote for Pool in the primaries Saturday and that he replied emphatically that he would not. The question was not asked him by any member of the school board, however.

Mr. Morgan declined to discuss this ide of it, and Mr. Sawyer, when asked for a statement, mill: "I have always considered that the schools should be and were out of politics and I have never tried to influence a vote. As to how I would vote personally, I have never hesitated to tell anybody who felt interested enough to ask me. My own vote was as far as I ever attempted to control say voting in Ell Paso. ## Wheat Fields Make 'Em Seasick -:||:- -:||:- -:||:- -:||:-Kansas Grain Worse Than Ocean

TOPEKA, Kas., July 22—Seasickness in the least of Kansas, in the geographical center of the United States, thousands of miles from the deep blue sea, has arrived, according to the Journal. The malady has appeared in a strange form and is caused by one of the greatest blesslings of mankind, the Kansas whest field.

Travelers on rallway trains in central and western Kansas tell some weird tales about the state long unbroken fields of wheat, five and six feet stalks, can be seen as far as the human sye can reach. And it is known far and wide that a wind, more or less gentle, blows most of the fine in the Sunflower state. The wind, blowing against the thousands of acres of wheat produces a billowy wave. The stalks go back and forth in continous motion. It is a beautiful move ment the wheat fields present to the sway is all there is to it, but railroad officials in Topeka have received a lot of trouble because of the activity of the Kansas humorist, the wheat field.

Can't Abate Blaces.

There have been several cases where Werse Than Ocean.

It worried him He ceased looking at the wheat made decided to soothe his feelings with a cigar. He arose to enter the smoking compartment and made his way there with some difficulty. In a short time he was seasick. The man who could cross the Atlantic ocean without having a singile meal interrupted was forced to admit that the wheat fields had purlobed his "goal."

Doctors at first tried to diagnose the trouble but failed utterly. Finally one of them reached the conclusion that it was a new liness, wheatsickness, that had caused the grief And later circumstances point our that it is true. Trainmen report daily that serers! passengers have slight or serious Cam't Abate Hiness.

There have been several cases where the traveler abourd a Kamasa train has become sick because of the gentle wind which blows the wheat fields. The sickness is akin to the popular one attained by nearly every person who crosses the ocean. One or two persons have become violently ill, all because of the wheat. And now the railroads are in receipt of several complaints because of this. They are powerless to stop the action of the wheat hear the railway tracks before it becomes ripe. And so, unless the wind. It would be unwise to cut the wheat near the railway tracks before it becomes ripe. And so, unless the wind coases its operation in central and western Kamas, tourists going to the mountains and the Pacific coast will experience sensickness in a new and modern form.

Toe Much for Marco Pole.

A tale is told of one man who found that the waving wheat was not exactly to his liking. This man was a person who had traveled far and wide, he has been to Europe several times, had croased the Gulf of Mexica and his days of sensickness and long been over. This blase traveler passed through Kamass on his way west, perhaps to take another long ocean voyage. Sitting in his comfortable Pullman on a through train, the graveler looked out the window to admire the Can't Abate Illness.
